

The Winter 2010 One Health Newsletter reports the concurrent development of novel West Nile vaccines for humans and equids. The use of a common platform for concurrent development of innovative veterinary and human vaccines against the same pathogen, meeting the needs for control of the same emerging threat to humans, appears to be unprecedented.

For the
complete story
, see Page 2 of the One Health newsletter.